Date Approved: 10/06/2026

You are invited to participate in Tele-TAPP, a federally funded research study that uses distance technology to expand access to the Teachers and Parents as Partners (TAPP) intervention in rural communities and supports educators in their efforts to partner with parents.

What is TAPP?

- TAPP is a proven, research-based intervention that brings parents and teachers together to address behavioral or social concerns that get in the way of student learning.
- Facilitators use TAPP to lead parent-teacher meetings, solve problems and assist in developing student behavior plans.

What is Tele-TAPP?

- Tele-TAPP is a new technology-enhanced version of the intervention developed through a partnership between East Tennessee State University (ETSU) and the University of Nebraska–Lincoln (UNL).
- Tele-TAPP involves the same structured process as traditional TAPP but is led by facilitators using distance technology (e.g., Zoom).

Join the Tele-TAPP Study

What does participation involve?

Teacher participation is completely voluntary. It includes being randomly selected to either participate in Tele-TAPP services or to continue with typical school services.

If selected for TAPP services:

- You will be asked to attend about four meetings with one of your students' parents and a facilitator, using distance technology (e.g., Zoom).
- You and the student's parent will create plans to support the student.
- You will receive up to $600 for participation.

If selected for typical services:

- You will not be asked to attend Tele-TAPP meetings.
- Your students will continue to receive services provided by the school.
- You will receive up to $300 for participation.

ALL teacher participants will be asked to:

- Complete a brief behavioral screener to identify possible students for participation.
- Complete two online surveys over the course of the school year that take approximately 75 minutes each.
